ID	DESCRIPTION
1	The error management system must be able of handle multiple kind of messages.
1.1	The error management system must support at least warnings and errors.
2	The error management system must indicate the file where the message was generated
3	The error management system must indicate the line where a message originates.
4	The error management system must indicate the position on the line where a message originates.
5	The error management system must indicate the code snippet in which a message originates.
6	The error management system must indicate the type of the error such as described in Chapter 4.
7	The error management system must indicate information to solve the error.
7.1	In the case of syntactic errors, the reason for the error will be indicated.
7.2	In the case of semantic errors, if the cause is conditioned by another element, a reference to this element must appear in the cause of the error.